About the Author

Xu Mingqiang, born in Suzhou of Jiangsu Province in China, is the Editor-in-Chief of the Foreign Languages Press. He majored in English for two years before joining the FLP as a translator/editor. He did a postgraduate course in Victoria University of Wellington in New Zealand in 1978-80, and obtained the FCO scholarship and completed his MPhil degree in publishing studies in Stirling University of UK in 1991-92. Active in international publishing, he was awarded the title of one of the 100 Outstanding Publishers in China by the Chinese Publishers' Association in 1996. Having lived in Beijing for over 30 years, he regards the city as his second hometown. He loves the city, the people and even the local accent which though he still finds it difficult to master. His special interest in Beijing gave him an impulse to write this book for the visitors to the city.
