Can books be dangerous, elegant, or sad? Can books be tempting, or smokin', or double d-daring? Can they compel you to hitchhike to the middle of Mexico, fall in love with snakes, or question your sanity? Of course they can. In this anthology, writers including Jonathan Lethem, Haven Kimmel and Charles Frazier describe their life-altering encounters with books. In personal essays that read like short stories they reveal how literature tempts, enchants and changes us. Insightful, heartfelt, humorous, and accessible, Remarkable Reads will delight anyone who has ever loved a book.
