In 1999, the Victoria and Albert Museum in London installed a Dale Chihuly Chandelier in its main entrance hall. It is the first major artwork by Chihuly to be installed in the United Kingdom. The former director of the V&A, Alan Borg, says that "its success, combined with the huge popular interest in his work, convinced us that we should mount a major Chihuly exhibition as soon as possible." As a result, from June 21 to October 21, 2001, the V&A held an extensive exhibition of Chihuly's art. Chihuly at the V&A is a hardbound exhibition catalog of this show. More than 100 stunning color photographs do justice to Chihuly's masterworks, providing clarity and detail in examining his diverse oeuvre.
