In David Sedaris's world no one is safe and no cow is sacred. A manic cross between Mark Leyner, Fran Liebowitz, and the National Enquirer, Sedaris's collection of stories and essays is a rollicking tour through the national Zeitgeist: a do-it-yourself suburban dad saves money by performing home surgery; a man who is loved too much flees the heavyweight champion of the world; a bitter Santa abuses the elves; a teenage suicide tries to incite a lynch mob at her funeral.

Nice to read your book^ - ^

Maybe I've read too many of Sedaris' books, the stories seem a little similar to me. Some jokes still hit me, but now as I finished the book, I couldn't recall any of the stories in Barrel Fever, except for the Christmas elf story which I read tonight. Anyway, Sedaris is more of a voice man to me than he is a writer. I prefer his audio books.

Funny, entertaining, and naughty.
