We continue with the Five Star's fifth set of stories about chevaliers, the purest and craziest most feared headliners in the Joker Galaxy, past and present. Jabo Beat is in Zanda City, Kastenpo on the planet Both, only to meet her death completely by accident. Dougulus Kaien, the Galaxy's most wanted criminal, its reigning chevalier, and the father of Jabo's two children, appears at Hathuha palace to meet his kids for the first time and pledge allegiance to Princess Mugumica in the tradition of Sward Sage Skins during the AD age. Plus: the saga of Christine V., daughter of one of Kallamity's elite Kneue Syltiss knights, who winds up killed a classmate for insulting her and her headdliner hertiage. What to do about such conduct unbecoming a knight, a definite theme throughout all the episodes here, divides the authorities into two factions: one in favor of immediate execution of the young girl, the other giving Christine the choice over what should be her fate. The latter, headed by retired emperor Lader, wins out and Christine decides to join the ranks of the chevaliers.
