The arrival of the autumn/winter 2001 debut issue of this deluxe fashion bi-annual for men and women forced a redefinition of the parameters of luxury magazine publishing. As a challenging cultural encyclopedia of the moment, it celebrated the extremes of contemporary lifestyles and explored the crossover in tastes and interests between the genders. With art direction by Alex Wiederin at AandR Media (famously responsible for recent Versace and Gucci campaigns), Dazed and Confused co-founder Jefferson Hack as editor, and fashion direction by Katy England of Alexander McQueen, Another 1 broke the formulas. Another 2 picks up where the debut left off: with pivotal interviews spanning film and politics. Patricia Arquette is interviewed by Michael Holden and the President of Venezuela, Hugo Chavez, is interviewed by Richard Gott and photographed by Rankin. Meanwhile, "Another Thing I Wanted To Tell You" offers intimate personal recommendations of things to see and do by contributors from Sam Taylor Wood and Gillian Wearing to Princess Superstar, Catherine Breillat, Elodie Bouchez, Jonathan Glazer, Melissa Auf Der Mar, Nigel Godrich and Milton Glaser. In "Masquerade," some of the world's leading fashion designers were commissioned to create a mask on the theme of split personality, including creations by Hedi Slimane, Karl Lagerfeld, the House of Valentino, Alexander McQueen, Hussein Chalayan and Vivienne Westwood. On either side of a John Galliano-art directed centrefold of male and female nudes are fashion collections shot by David Sims, Horst Diekgerdes, Will McBride, Nick Knight, Alexei Hay and Martina Hoogland Ivanow with Guido, while Mario Sorrenti shows the inner strength and beauty of a mix of New Yorkers including Chuck D, Chloe Sevigny, Will Oldham and Grandmaster Kwon Jea-hwa.
