Li Yan and Margaret Campbell, Chinese policeman and Chicago pathologist heroes of THE FIREMAKER, meet again when Margaret's unique skills are required once more to investigate a series of ritual executions in Beijing. The first victims are drugged, tied, labelled with a single word and a single number - then expertly beheaded. But the fourth victim was an American diplomat. Compelled to work with one another, Margaret Campbell and Li Yan again feel the overwhelming attraction that nearly destroyed them both when they first met. But now Margaret has another admirer - a brilliant, charismatic American TV archaeologist. And Li has a family tragedy that demands all his heart. Slowly they tease out the killer's secrets. But the closer they come to the truth behind the executions, the more dangerously close they come to a killer who is prepared to sacrifice anyone to conceal it.

评论

故事写于2000年初，场景描写的北京还是老北京的样子，主人公跟之前看的第一部是同一人，有兵马俑的介绍穿插，自己也在读这小说期间意外去了一趟兵马俑。我没有猜到直接凶手，但读到一半时猜出了一个间接凶手。

china thriller之一 只有人物、地点、题材是中国的 其他都是西方侦探小说的套路
