"Hard Candy", is Rutten's second volume of poetry. "Hard Candy", is a metaphor for life: delicious, desirable, and often difficult. Rutten's poems range from the sensuous, reflective and profound, such as her poem addressing the Madrid train bombing. These poems are fierce, honest, straight to the heart work, featuring fresh metaphors that make one go back to read lines again and again. She is also the author of, "Lovers and Other Things That Go Bump In the Night."
