Emotion—the multifaceted nature of being human. Love inevitably tops the list. We know love from the moment of our birth, as we grow, and in those times of our life that we spend reflecting. To have the hand of love touch the heart is to know the vast array and enormous complications that therein share a common factor. That is what this book tries to accomplish in poetic verse. When we love, if we truly allow ourselves to feel, we come to a better understanding of ourselves and those around us. Smile for the gift, for it truly is a gift. Embrace the joy and remember to remember the sadness. For with the balances we find growth. In the memories, we find comfort, and an awareness that far extends our comprehension, but still, we know. Then we understand. Then we believe. Then we love.
