One evening Harold decided to go for a walk in the moonlight. But there wasn't any moon, and Harold needed a moon for a walk in the moonlight. Fortunately, he had brought his purple crayon. So he drew a moon. He also needed something to walk on. So he drew a path... And thus begins one of the most imaginative and enchanting adventures in all of children's books. The creative concept behind this beloved story has intrigued children and kept them absorbed for generations, as page by page unfolds the dramatic and clever adventures of Harold and his purple crayon.

想象和创造力。想到兔子说，你们都等着人讲故事，我自己画一个故事给你们讲好了。

“神笔马良”。

好棒。读完给女儿种草中国的Harold神笔马良
任先生路过说“想起来小时候好像画画都是马良牌的笔” …No…那是马利牌…

愿在你的心中，window总是能够right around the moon。

保留一颗童心
