Imagine you're an alligator. You work in a factory that processes ducks. And you live in a town filled with other alligators who dine exclusively on nice, plump, juicy ducks for breakfast, lunch, and dinner. So what do you do when an innocent duckling waddles into your life? Eat him or become friends? This is best-selling poster artist Michael Bedard's first book for children. In Hopper-esque paintings, his googly-eyed gators and yellow-billed quackers take center stage in an offbeat story about a decidedly odd couple -- and the friendship they make in an alligator-eat-duck world.
