More than just a novel, The Bus is an epic, a mad cataract of pure lyric prose, a river of city-sprung words, the story of one man's trip across Los Angeles on the bus, from the Mexican deep streets of Echo Park to the affluent avenues of Santa Monica.

The Bus is a continuation of the urban vision Steve Abee established in his first collection of short stories and poems King Planet. Prophetic, hilarious and depraved, full of sorrow and exhilaration—no gimmicks, no tricks, just a straight soul book celebrating the regular madness that surrounds every breath we take and every transfer we make, a testament to the human universe of experience that is passed through and lived in every moment of every day.
