"The Tanner Lectures on Human Values", which honor the American scholar, industrialist, and philanthropist Ober Clark Tanner, are presented annually at each of nine universities in the United States and Great Britain. They were established at the University of California, Berkeley, beginning in the 2000/1 academic year. "The Berkeley Tanner Lectures" series has been established in the belief that these distinguished lectures, together with the lively debates stimulated by their presentation in Berkeley, deserve to be made available to a wider audience. "The Practice of Value" is an exploration of a pervasive but puzzling aspect of our world: value. At the core of the book are the "Tanner Lectures" delivered at Berkeley in 2001 by Joseph Raz, who has been one of the leading figures in moral and legal philosophy since the 1970s. His aim is to make sense of the dependence of value on social practice, without falling back on cultural relativism. In response, three eminent philosophers, Christine Korsgaard, Robert Pippin, and Bernard Williams, offer interestingly different approaches to the subject. The book begins with an introduction by Jay Wallace, setting the scene for what follows, and ends with a response from Raz to his commentators. The result is a fascinating debate, accessible to readers throughout and beyond philosophy, about the relations between human values and human life.

评论

拉兹的演讲延续了MF以后的一贯主张，进一步细化了价值和社会依附的不同形式。威廉斯的批评相当有见地，拉兹和科斯珈德的交锋实在精彩。（Pipinn的那篇没怎么看明白）
