Three reading levels allow your child to read at his or her own pace:

Level 1 encourages children to recognize words and read simple sentences

Level 2 introduces rich vocabulary and longer sentences

Level 3 contains more complex stories, challenging terms, and longer paragraphs

I invite you to read the stories to your child, read the stories with your child, and listen as your child learns to read independently. One of the most important gifts you can give a child is the opportunity to read Wlth that knowledge. he or she can go anywhere and tell everyone about it, just as Buster does with his postcards

Arthur and his friends have given me a special connection to families all over the world I hope Postcards from Buster will do the same for yo
