:In this important new book, Gordon Tullock, a founding father of the Public Choice school, provides a formal analysis of the foundations of decision making. Voting procedures are crucial to Western democratic governments but are also employed in dictatorial governments, private clubs, corporations and religious organizations. This comprehensive book examines the many techniques of voting and the different outcomes in different situations. Gordon Tullock's analysis begins by using a simple model in which individuals vote in terms of their own preferences. It is assumed that the voters are well informed, their preferences are reasonably firm and there are no trades or bargains made among voters. These assumptions are then relaxed in order to make the analysis more realistic. Special attention is given to Arrow's work and the idea that people do not always vote according to simple preferences. The author discusses the phenomenon of 'throwing a vote away' or the possibility of an individual voting against their preference if offered something in return. After considering strategic voting, situations where voters engage in trades between one another and the lack of perfect information, Gordon Tullock examines a voter's options and the idea that individuals may rank options in degrees of their preferred outcomes. He also explores the possibility of preferences changing over time, why some issues are put up to vote and others are not, and situations where individuals voting with the same preferences, but in different voting systems, result in different outcomes. On Voting expands present thinking in the Public Choice school and provides a forum for creating new paradigms in the school as well as changing the focus and scope of current studies. It encourages new research by suggesting areas where more work should be done. The book will be of special interest to political scientists as well as those interested in public policy and political economy.

书评

塔洛克是一个“与众不同”的经济学研究者。自己之前读过的那些作者，萨缪尔森数学性强，弗里德曼思辨，布坎南逻辑性好，科斯和诺斯都属于东西需要琢磨才能理解的，杨小凯的思维方式很特别；塔洛克和他们都不一样，或许是本身为法律学博士出身的缘故（其实我觉得这没有太大影响...）

公共选择学方面的入门读物，也涉及了很多如何将政治利益化为公众利益最大化问题的探讨。不过我最大的感触是，能否出版这样一本书，其实就是中美之间最大的差异。
