

Conceptions of the Desirable

“It’s possible that the only ones who understand this book are those who have themselves once thought those thoughts that it contains – or ones like them. – So: It is not a textbook – its purpose would be fulfilled if it provided pleasure to those who read it with understanding.”

Right in the heart of Graz, the second largest city in Austria, an entire city district had simply fallen into oblivion. Now, the industrial park of the former Reininghaus Brewery has been rediscovered. </P>

The new owners have taken up the search for answers: How, in future, do we wish to work and live? </P>

In his foreword, Clifford Pearson deputy editor of the Architectural record, writes:</P>

"I dont know what Reininghaus will be like when people start moving there. I have no idea if it will be a model that other developers or community builders will want to follow. But I am impressed with the way its founders are approaching their task. Theyre asking the right questions and talking to some fascinating people. Theyre thinking and wondering before they start defining and designing. By doing so, theyve gotten my attention.</P>

The book presents the results of a research by structuring its content into: Life, Work, Urbanity and Education. </P>
