Book Description

In this final installment of the Bridesmaid Chronicles trilogy, the bride's best friend, Manhattan divorce attorney Vivien Shelton, arrives in Texas with the perfect gift for the couple: an iron-clad pre-nup. Soon, sparks are flying between Vivien and the groom's lawyer. Original.

From Publishers Weekly

Kendall's sparkling third installment in her Bridesmaid Chronicles series (after First Kiss) offers both zany romance and serious probing of her protagonists' emotional depths. Vivien Shelton, a top New York divorce attorney, travels to rural Fredericksburg, Tex., to convince long-time friend Julia to sign a prenuptial agreement before her upcoming marriage to vineyard owner Roman Sonntag. Sparks fly when Viv encounters J.B. Anglin, the Sonntag family attorney with whom she had a one-night fling three years earlier. The flirty banter between Viv and J.B. is deft, with her suave Manhattan socialite lingo pitted against his good ol' boy southern charm. As J.B. must come to terms with his failed first marriage, so Viv is forced to alter her cynical view of marriage and commitment. But Viv and J.B. aren't the only characters in town, as evidenced by a colorful emu chase and Viv's encounter with local law enforcement. This witty, well-crafted entry bodes well for the final volume, First Love.

From Booklist

Manhattan divorce barracuda Vivien Shelton must deal with her own insecurities and murky romantic past when her best friend, Julia Spinelli, asks her to be a bridesmaid and Sydney, Julia's older sister, pleads with Viv to convince Julia of the merits of a prenuptial agreement. This, of course, entails a visit to Fredericksburg, Texas, and almost the first person she meets is J. B. Anglin, the groom's family attorney with whom she shared one memorable evening three years ago and whose wounded expression when she abruptly asked him to leave has remained with her ever since--as have the sizzling memories of that delicious encounter. John Bryan, of course, will be a groomsman, and Julia gets revenge on her conniving friend by threatening Viv with all manner of humorous paybacks in the third--after First Date (2005), also by Kendall, and First Kiss (2005), by Kylie Adams--romantic comedy in the four-part Bridesmaid Chronicles.
