waking at the bottom of the dark waking
at the bottom of the dark to the love of your body
to drink cold tea
and stuff clothes in a sack and help
the sleepy child
with her difficult socks
i think of wartime
an evacuation
to be out walking early a day so cold like this dawn striped
with clouds
although the park
there are
there are
hunched
i
am the
i suppose
is dangerous
old men walking dogs
thin young
men
down in their thin jackets only woman
yes i am the woman whom personal happiness wraps
a magic coat
the windows are glazed
with the trees shake out their final green and gold above the leaf-thick
grass
the meadow opens spacious
as a prairie
oh how can i
remember
it was winter
clear.
was shining through
park.
