These fifty lucid yet urgent poems range in tone from lyric to ironic to meditative to prophetic, and in subject from the personal to the political viewed in its broadest sense. They investigate the mysterious writing of poetry itself, as well as the passage of time and our shared sense of mortality. The collection begins with poems that consider the past and ends with harbingers of things to come.

评论

没有我熟识的那种几行一韵，就像一个人在断断续续诉说着什么，神奇的是从转行停顿的地方居然能微微体会出里面的情感。 最后一篇The door swings open, the door swings closed好棒...是那种看完仿佛过了一生的文字。
