The need for culturally sensitive, accurate, and well-crafted reporting on race and ethnicity is as important as ever. Selected from works honored in the "Let's Do It Better! Workshop on Journalism, Race, and Ethnicity" held at the Columbia Graduate

School of Journalism, the television and newspaper stories in this collection are much-needed examples of excellence in reporting. The "Authentic Voice" is the most comprehensive multimedia tool to date on the coverage of race and ethnicity. The text, DVD, and website project is a unique resource, featuring interviews with leading journalists, including Ted Koppel, interactive discussion points, teaching tips and weblinks that are a must for journalism educators and professionals who want to improve their craft.
