Poker is one of the hottest games in North America. From celebrity players to poker professionals, poker has become a national obsession. The World Series of Poker (WSOP) now has a $5 million first prize and totals nearly $50 million in overall prizes. The WSOP is fervently watched by millions of players. Poker Television ratings are up over 40% from 2003, and ESPN is planning to substantially increase its poker coverage in 2005. With the cost of a deck of cards under a few dollars and the ability to play free games online, poker is one of the least expensive and most easily accessible games to play. 60-70 million people play poker, making it one of the top games demographics in America, according to Sports Illustrated.
