Following the success of the hardback, this paperback edition of "A Year At Kew" is published to coincide with a new 12-part series, which returns to follow another year in the life of Kew Garden. The first series attracted average audiences of over 3 million viewers and the hardback book sold over 40,000 copies. Kew Garden has been designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site, ranking it alongside Stonehenge, the Pyramids and the Taj Mahal. It receives over a million visitors a year and has been voted the UK's favourite garden. Beautifully illustrated and with extensive behind-the-scenes access, "A Year At Kew" captures the passion and commitment that goes into the garden, and offers a unique look at this much-loved institution. It features a foreword by Alan Titchmarsh, himself a former student at Kew.
