Tulips have been a source of fascination for centuries. Photographer Sabine Rsnier has created vivid photos that truly capture the majesty of this almost mythical flower. Following a single bunch of tulips as it passes through time, the twenty-eight large format photographs in this book document the subtle changes that result from life's design. The book opens with the poem Steps by Herman Hesse, and then omits further text, allowing the photos to speak and sing. This book is a must have not only for flower enthusiasts, gardeners and photo book aficionados but also for anyone who is experiencing life's changes.
