In New Mexico, the system of State Monuments was established on 14 March 1931 by the Act of the Preservation of the Scientific Resources of New Mexico. And so began 70 years of preservation and protection of historic and prehistoric sites. Over the years, over 18 sites have been designated, more than any other state in the country. This book provides a brief history and overview of each monument, including Coronado (established in 1935), Jemez (established in 1940), Fort Sumner (established in 1968), Fort Selden (established in 1973) and Lincoln (established in 1976), as well as two 2005 designations: El Camino Real heritage Centre and El Bosque Redondo Memorial. It includes historical chronology, maps and information for visitors.
