Increasingly, technology seems to be de-materializing our world. Yet our ideas and experiences -- both physical and cultural -- remain fundamentally patterned by the complex material interplay of brain, body, and world. With support from pioneering research in the cognitive and neurosciences, Sarah Robinson combines philosophy, poetry, and personal narrative to offer a poignant study of the many ways in which our built environment shapes us as significantly as we have shaped it. Nesting: Body, Dwelling, Mind explores how our very being is sculpted by our interactions in an environment that we ourselves have fashioned, making us our own greatest artifact. Includes an introduction by Juhani Pallasmaa.

评论

喜欢 dark matters 和practically unconscious 那两个chapter / Lao Tzu expresses the functional interdependence between container and contained in his poem..."therefore profit comes from what is there, usefulness comes from what is not there."

整本书都非常weak

非常东方，太多行云流水式的引用，缺乏自己坚定的观点，然而这并不是意识流小说呵，放在建筑理论、建筑评论里只能给三星半
