Did you know that September is the month with the highest birthrate? That bloomers were named in honor of activist Amelia Jenks Bloomer, who championed womens rights in her magazine, The Lily? That the only American to snag a gold medal at the 1968 Winter Olympics was figure skater Peggy Fleming? That Queen Elizabeth I had a private privy designed for her in 1596, nearly two centuries before the modern toilet was introduced to the public? Alicia Alvrez has done it again. By researching hundred of books, magazines, and websites, shes created a compendium of data and lore about women that makes for entertaining reading. Full of fabulously fun facts.
