"Interventions into Modernist Cultures" is a comparative analysis of the cultural politics of modernist writing in the United States and Taiwan. Amie Elizabeth Parry argues that the two sites of modernism are linked by their representation or suppression of histories of U.S. imperialist expansion, Cold War neo-colonial military presence, and economic influence in Asia. Focusing on poetry, a genre often overlooked in postcolonial theory, she contends that the radically fragmented form of modernist poetic texts is particularly well suited to representing U.S. imperialism and neo-colonial modernities. Reading various works by U.S. expatriates Ezra Pound and Gertrude Stein, Parry compares the cultural politics of U.S. canonical modernism with alternative representations of temporality, hybridity, erasure, and sexuality in the work of the Taiwanese writers Yu Kwang-chung and Hsia Yu and the Asian American immigrant author Theresa Hak Kyung Cha. Juxtaposing poems by Pound and Yu Kwang-chung, Parry shows how Yu's fragmented, ambivalent modernist form reveals the effects of U.S. neo-colonialism while Pound denies and obscures U.S. imperialism in Asia, asserting a form of non-developmental universalism through both form and theme. Stein appropriates discourses of American modernity and identity to represent non-normative desire and sexuality, and Parry contrasts this tendency with representations of sexuality in the contemporary experimental poetry of Hsia Yu. Finally, Parry highlights the different uses of modernist forms by Pound in his Cantos - which incorporate a multiplicity of decontextualized and ahistorical voices - and by Cha in her 1982 novel "Dictee", an historicized, multilingual work. Parry's sophisticated readings provide a useful critical framework for apprehending how 'minor modernisms' illuminate the histories erased by certain canonical modernist texts.
