This volume presents, in a purely case-based format, an emphasis on the practical evaluation and treatment of typical chronic pain complaints. Each chapter is devoted to a single area of pain complaint, such as back pain, neck pain, headache, etc. Four to six patients are presented, all of whom have the same chief pain complaint. Typical historical information, and the usual testing results are presented and the reader is instructed to make a diagnosis. It covers a wide range of neurological and musculoskeletal systems and will be invaluable to primary care clinicians, neurologists and residents in these areas.
