The book deals with both the abstract and practical aspects of moving from a university laboratory to a position in the biotech industry. Each chapter lists common and unique features to evaluate breaking down complex decisions into manageable elements. Several sections provide "how to" guides for the preparation of manuscripts, patents, grants, and internal company documents. It is written by an experienced academician and successful biotechnology entrepreneur. It reviews the basic tools taught in a traditional university. It identifies new ways in which these tools will be used in the corporate world. It details the 'nuts and bolts' necessary to negotiate a successful position in the biotech industry.
