This textbook is a practical survival guide for trainee cardiologists worldwide. Integrating clinical information with management systems, it provides the reader with a complete approach to patient care within a complex healthcare environment including both inpatient and outpatient settings. Split into eight sections, the content provides an in-depth practical discussion of modern healthcare delivery, through pre-hospital evaluation, acute cardiovascular management and follow-up outpatient care. Algorithmic clinical pathways, cost effectiveness and relation to clinical trials are all essential elements of modern medical management and are included throughout.
