Nominated for the Pulitzer Prize, and the Lambda Literary Award, The Dolphin Smiles explores, "women at love and war." A psychological drama for the sensualist the novel examines women and medicine, sexuality and freedom, the healing power of Eros and the liberation of the body to release trauma. Haunted by the death of her mother and her sister's descent into madness, Pamela Glass, a gifted young doctor, returns to California in search of answers. Tension mounts between Pamela and Bruna, her fiery and pragmatic lover, as they touch down at a feminist conference. Restless and yearning for a deeper level of experience, Pamela is drawn into an erotic intrigue with Martine, a mysterious French woman.
