Business language around the world in the 21st century is in a state of rapid change. This creates the need for new business dictionaries that are not tied to the past but rather reflect the new global economy. This is particularly true in regard to an English-Japanese business dictionary. This dictionary is an essential tool for anyone communicating or doing business in the global market. Covering business subjects such as accounting, insurance, real estate, taxes, business law, computers and more, this dictionary includes terms used in businesses world-wide, as well as by international organisation like the United Nations, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund.
