Opening the door to a consistent, mature lifestyle is challenging for anyone, but it is especially stressful for gay men and lesbians living in a heterosexual world. In Now That You're Out of the Closet, What About the Rest of the House?, Linda Handel speaks from her own personal experiences as a former spouse in a heterosexual marriage, a mother of two, an out lesbian and a licensed therapist to explore the full spectrum of life concerns—from lingering childhood issues, dating and sex to intolerance, abuse and self-hatred—in a voice that is always direct, open and refreshingly honest.

A witty, creative guidebook filled with solid advice, Now That You're Out of the Closet, What About the Rest of the House? offers encouraging direction to those who have discovered that coming out is only the first step in the journey toward a fulfilling life.

作者介绍:

Linda Handel is a certified clinical mental health counselor in Providence, Rhode Island, and a practicing therapist to gays, lesbians and others. An experienced speaker and workshop leader, she co-hosted The Company We Keep, a public television series on issues in the gay and lesbian community that was nominated for an Emmy.
