Book Description We usually turn to our friends for relationship savvy, but how often do we learn about love from our pets? Cats are particularly self-sufficient; they don't seem to need love or anyone else. But the cats in this book can teach valuable lessons about being a couple and living in harmony. The Cats' Book of Romance offers wise advice illustrated with beautiful full-color photographs of two cats that nurture each other through good times and bad: Treasure mementos from when you first met, depicted by a cat cradling a beloved ball of yarn; Fall asleep together under the stars, with the two cats sweetly nestled together, snoozing. Watch the sunset together, with the two cats gazing awestruck into the distance. Maintain friendships outside your relationship, with one cat staring transfixed at an unsuspecting goldfish in a clear glass bowl. The Cats' Book of Romance makes a unique, creative stocking stuffer, Valentine's Day gift, bridal shower present, or thoughtful memento. About the Author When author Kate Ledger and her husband adopted Ion and Miss Irene, the book's feline models, they soon realized the animals had much to teach them about building a lasting relationship. Kate earned an M.F.A. degree in fiction from the University of Arizona and is working on her first novel. Photographer Lisa Sachs received an M.F.A. degree in photography from Yale University and has shown her artwork in galleries in New York and Paris. She works as a freelance photographer in Washington, D.C. The sisters-in-law both live in Maryland.
