The achievements of Nobel laureates G.B. Shaw W.B. Yeats philosopher Henri Bergson and Ireland's Sean MacBride are well known. But few know the story of the powerful women in their lives - activist Maud Gonne psychic channel Moina Bergson Mathers theatrical producer Annie Horniman and actress Florence Farr. These women formed the heart of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn practising magic and working toward spiritual growth. Acting outside the Victorian codes of behaviour these women were powerful agents of change and heralded both a new age and a new woman. This biography distils 12 self-empowering principles that today's women can use to achieve their own spiritual personal and political goals.
