Because of censorship laws, the "Edition 69 series was never for sale, nor made available to libraries. The books were exclusively for subscribers, collectors, and a circle of friends, the Czech avant-garde investigating the taboos of bourgeois culture. This volume includes the two most important texts in the series: - Nezval's Sexual "Nocturne- Styrsky's Emilie "Come to Me in a Dream- original essay from psychoanalyst Bohuslav Brouk, a founding member of the Czech Surrealists and much influenced by Max Ernst
