This collection contains 28 critical and descriptive essays by prominent philosophers on the work of well-known and controversial philosopher Jurgen Habermas, the most eminent living representative of the tradition known as Critical Theory. Habermas's life's work has been devoted to defending the Enlightenment ideals of rationality, humanism, and the possibilities of discourse. Contributors include James Bowman, Lenore Langsdorf, Carlos Pereda, Alexander Bertland, Paget Henry, Garth Gillan, Eduardo Mendieta, Thelma Z. Lavine, Beth J. Singer, W S. K. Cameron, Chung-Ying Cheng, Enrique Dussel, Douglas M. Kellner, David Ingram, Paul G. Chevigny, Lorenzo C. Simpson, Marton Beck Matustik, Scott Bartlett, Max Oelschlaeger, Bill Martin, William L. McBride, Marie Fleming, G. B. Madison, Richard E. Palmer, Larry A. Hickman, David Detmer, Robert Young, and James L. Marsh.
