When Grandpa dies, the whole family grieves, and his youngest grandson can't imagine life without him. Everyone has fond memories of Grandpa. His granddaughter talks about hiking the canyon with him, and his grandsons remember Grandpa climbing up to the tree house and carving pumpkins in the kitchen. But where is Grandpa now? The youngest boy thinks he knows. Grandpa is still close by, a part of all the people and places he loved.

"Here is a poignant, touching, and spiritually evocative tale. I heartily recommend it to families everywhere." (Robert Coles, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of The Spiritual Lives of Children)

"Barron makes a heartfelt tribute to a deceased loved one in his picture-book debut, which is given stirring visual expression in Soentpiet's dazzling, crystal-clear mountain

landscapes." (Kirkus Reviews)

果然饭后在深中图书馆乱逛总能让人有些许小惊喜。又是一本小画册。怀念故人的方式多种多样，或许我会更喜欢那些微妙的细节，回到曾经共处过的地方去走走看看，早就化为生命的一部分，又何怕忘记呢。 "Heaven is any place where people who love each other have shared some time together." "To see as far as I can possibly see." 我想带着所有的情感与回忆，到更远的地方等待与重逢。阿奴比斯之秤会衡量一切吧. Chris
