Our new Coping titles will keep you abreast of difficult situations and how to deal with them. The Internet is beginning to replace many forms of entertainment and leisure activities that teens used to enjoy. Rather than going outside or to the movies, many teens opt to stay at home and go online. A teen who spends a lot of time on the Internet needs to know the dangers, such as false personas in chat rooms and insecure email. This book highlights the many positive aspects of the Web, like being able to communicate with people from all over the world, but it also discusses the safety issues that arise from this new activity.
