Isaac and Nora haven't seen each other in five years, yet when Nora phones Isaac late one night, he knows who it is before she's spoken a word. Isaac, a photographer, is relinquishing his artistic career, while Nora, a writer, is seeking to rededicate herself to hers. Fueled by their rediscovered love, Nora is soon on fire with the best work she's ever done, until she realizes that the story she's writing has turned into a fictionalized portrait of Isaac, exposing his frailties and compromises and sure to be viewed by him as a betrayal. How do we remain faithful to our calling if it estranges us from the people we love? How do we remain in love after we have seen the very worst of our loved ones? These are some of the questions explored in a novel that critics are calling "an absolute pleasure" (The Seattle Times).

The second half undoubtedly prevails the first half, through which we see the thickness of misery, including Billie's dying and Issac's suffering because of others' success. It picks a brilliant fresh topic with touching sentences which describe universal feelings of aimlessness, powerlessness etc. The wording and grammar are childishly simple.

有文字情节的人不妨一读~很不错的一本书，除了那个雕琢的结尾...
