Our Senses help us know and enjoy the world around us, from hearing music to tasting chocolate chip cookies and feeling the softness of a kitten's fur. Each book in this colorful series present one of the five senses and explains how the organs related to that sense work. The books also describe the range of sensations we experience, how people cope when their senses are impaired, and the different ways animals use their senses. Colorful photographs, helpful diagrams, clear explanations, and fun activities bring this series to life and help make it the perfect introduction to the five senses.
