

Getting Published

Getting Published 下载链接1

著者:Gerald Jackson

出版者:Nordic Inst of Asian Studies

出版时间:2009-3-31

装帧:Paperback

isbn:9788791114779

This small book aims to guide both would-be authors and those more experienced through some of the pitfalls and complexities of getting published. The key concerns are to increase knowledge and control over events while reducing uncertainty. The author drew on many years' experience in Asian studies publishing to prepare this work.

作者介绍:

目录: Preface

What this book will do for you • What's in a name? • A clear focus means clear advice • Have you got what it takes? • About the authors • Beyond the book • Acknowledgements

1. Behind the scenes

The people inside the publishing house • The people outside the publishing house • Producing the physical books • Bringing the books to customers • The state of the book industry • The book industry and you, the author

2. Planning your book

Understanding needs and desires • Success is not one thing • Questions to ask yourself • Which market? • Clarifying your focus • Mapping the book • Choosing a great title • In celebration of odd titles • Annotating and evaluating the table of contents

3. From thesis to book

The pressures of junior scholarship • Why is a thesis not a book? • What to do with your thesis • Assessing your material • Getting started • Things you will need to cut • Things you will need to add

4. Producing a shorter (or collected) work

Why write articles? • Reworking (or recycling) material • But is this what you really want? • Planning and writing your article • Finding the right journal • Getting your article published • Contributing a chapter to an edited volume • Editing a multi-author volume

5. Writing your book

Language • Which language? • Style • Cutting the fog • Presentation • Permissions and the use of copyright material • The writing experience • Survival tips for blocked writers

6. Finding the right publisher

Identifying the candidates • Connections, connections • Approaching the publisher • What if a publisher contacts you? • How to be concise • Proposal etiquette • The importance of the pitch • Waiting on tenterhooks • Where now?

7. Getting accepted

Preparing and sending the text • External assessment • Typical peer review questions • New forms of peer review • Internal assessments and recommendations • Financial projections • Sources of income • Price and profitability • Decision time

8. Negotiating a contract

Kinds of rights • Open Access and Creative Commons • Set in stone or open to negotiation? • Before you sign

9. Working towards publication

Enter the production manager • Finalizing your manuscript • From disk to bookshelf • The editing process • Designing and typesetting your book • Backroom or Bangalore? • Producing camera-ready copy • Proofing • Indexing • Printing, binding and delivery

10. Promoting your book

What is academic book marketing? • Everyday life in the marketing department • The importance of the author in promoting books • What you can do before publication • What you can do after publication • Promotional DOs and DON'Ts

11. Going it alone

Making the decision • Deciding on format • Doing the work • Finding a partner • Promoting and distributing your book • Measures of success Epilogue 185 Publishing revolutions • Electronic formats • E-book readers • POD and the bookshop as content kiosk • Free Internet repositories • The content revolution • Bite-sized scholarship • Creative marketing • The book is dead, long live the book

Top tips

Appendix 1: Practical style and presentation issues

Spelling and grammar • Document formatting • Font matters • Layout and punctuation • Quotations, notes, citations, etc. • Nontext elements • Graphic images and their formats • Other technical issues
Appendix 2: Common editing and proof-reading marks
Appendix 3: Compendium of publishing terms
Further reading
Index
• • • • • (收起)

Getting Published_ 下载链接1

标签

论文写作

职业发展

写作

Writing

AcademicSkills

评论

Getting Published_ 下载链接1

书评

Getting Published_下载链接1