Poet Clyde Watson brings the youngest readers and listeners on a journey to wander through a moon-dream world to discover the secrets of the night: there's a Man in the Moon who tells stories ? magical tales of kings, mermaids, and dancing elves ? while his little brown dog does wonderful circus tricks. Clyde Watson expresses a universal childhood fantasy in simple, fresh, and precisely chosen words perfectly complemented by Susanna Natti's delicate, star-sprinkled pictures. This little book will stir the imagination and lead children to dream about secrets of their own at bedtime or any time at all.
