It is 1969, and famed artist Seiichi Hayashi has decided that his comics, having flirted with pop, need some heart and soul. He turns to the moody graphics of old kashihon gekiga and the sentiments of Japanese enka blues.

"Because of you, my long life will be withered with frost. This fading shadow of an empty shell ... our love."

So laments the heart-broken bar hostess of Flowering Harbour, one of the classic works of the legendary alternative manga magazine Garo.

夹带风雪气息的故事~分镜很有味道

-----
静态分镜，故事没读出味道，还要再看几遍
