Divine contains strong language and scenes of descriptive sex. It is intended for mature audiences. Please note - this novel is a romantic comedy and not a dark read. It is not associated with or in the same genre as The NOVA Trilogy.

Divine Hallowell is a young disgruntled college professor, an author of erotic novels, and a woman with a number of 'fixations.' She's also a bit of a loner and she hasn't been out with a man in years. Look up the word single in the dictionary and you might come across her name. Her life is 'meh.'

But, she has her eye on someone - a guy in her neighborhood who may turn her life upside down and inside out, igniting a spark in her heart.

James Daniel Keller was born and raised in the small university town where Divine teaches. He's unpredictable, good-humored, and absolutely stunning - a different type of guy than Divine has ever experienced. And in her eyes, he's quite possibly way too good to be true.

There has to be something wrong with this guy, right? Isn't there always something?

And then there is Divine's inner voice, Violet, a pain in the ass, relentless, and full of conflicting advice. Why can't she just shut the hell up?

This is a story of two people with too many secrets trying to find love in a community teeming with mystery and deceit.

评论

读这本书算是场愉快的阅读，搞笑、浪漫和情色都恰到好处。Divine是一名大学教授，也是位看咸片上瘾的情色作家，在学校被bitch同事调拨与学生的关系，在兼职作家时被同类型作家贬低讽刺以抬高自己的作品，而且父母双亡，严重封闭自己，常常和自己内心的声音对话。女主不仅看毛片写情色小说，还有观淫癖。看上了住自己对面的男主Dan之后，跑人家窗外偷窥人家多日之后，在他邮箱留下小纸条约他见面。Div和Dan的几次约会都好有趣。中间略有波折，不过结局还是很治愈的~~~
