Americans call strings of tiny bulbs "Christmas lights," unfairly consigning them to just one brief season. The British call them "fairy lights," a year-round kind of name that sounds much more apt to us. After all, if there's one thing these little lights bring to any room, it's a bit of enchantment. Room Lanterns comes with a string of ten tiny lights, ready to plug in and get glowing. To personalize them, we've bound 7 sets of perforated paper shades right in the book. Follow the step-by-step instructions to punch out the shades and fold them into shape. Easy-to-use snaps make it simple to secure the shades to your light string. The shades vary from simple cones to fancy flower, star and pinwheel shapes, all in tween-approved patterns and colors. With all these shades and stylish ideas, Room Lanterns makes easy to transform your room's ambience whenever your feel like it. It's enough to give "mood lighting" a whole new meaning.
