While spending the summer trying to deal with her parent's divorce, Juliana, with the help of her Ojibway friend, uncovers an ancient secret that helps her reconcile with her father and, at the same time, acquire a new appreciation for the dangerous beauty of Canada's north country. Now in its fourth printing, this bestselling young adult novel is becoming a Canadian classic. It has been nominated for young readers' choice awards across the country, including Ontario's Silver Birch Award, BC's Red Cedar Award, and the Manitoba Young Readers' Choice Award. Options for film and Danish rights have been sold.
