Hear Us Out: Lesbian and Gay Stories of Struggle, Progress, and Hope from 1950 to the Present is both history and fiction combined. It's divided into sections, one for each decade from 1950 to the present. You'll find two stories in each section, plus an introductory essay about LGBT history—with, when possible, an emphasis on how that decade's history affected (or affects!) teens. The stories all feature lesbian or gay main characters who are dealing with situations that could have arisen in the same decade. Feel free to read just the stories, just the essays, or both as you wish; the book will work either way.

作者介绍:

Garden, who has won both the Lambda Book Award and the Margaret A. Edwards Award, is best known for her novel, Annie on My Mind (1982), which was critically acclaimed but attracted controversy because of its lesbian characters.
