This text is a companion volume to David Charlesworth's "Furniture-making Techniques" which looks at a range of projects and expert techniques involved in the fine craft of furniture making. The text includes step-by-step processes on how to make a piece of furniture, illustrated with 180 full colour photographs of the finished products. The approach this book takes to the art of furniture making is a combination of analytical, practical and innovative views, where the beginner, more experienced woodworker, and expert craftsman are all challenged alike. The result of which is for the reader to employ the same meticulous approach to their designs to produce exhibition-quality results.
