Build literacy in beginning readers by inviting them to make their own books. Charming stories will delight young readers with simple, repetitive, and predictable text, rhyme, and rhythm. Children are actively engaged as they create their own illustrations and complete sentence frames, making the books truly their own. While reinforcing basic concepts, these little books provide children with text they can read successfully on their own. Imagine how proud children will be sharing their very own books with family and friends. A great way to encourage a lifelong love of reading.
